

NON-PROFIT BOARD INTERNSHIP PROGRAM (NPBI)

Community Service-Learning + Career Centre

2024-2025

The Non-Profit Board Student Internship program (NPBI) was launched in 2006 with support from the Alberta Government Board Development Program.

NPBI provides undergraduate and graduate students at the University of Alberta the opportunity to learn the variety of practices and skills involved in serving on the boards of community-based non-profit organizations.

Treaty Acknowledgement

The University of Alberta respectfully acknowledges that we are located on Treaty 6 territory, a traditional gathering place for diverse Indigenous peoples including the Cree, Blackfoot, Métis, Nakota Sioux, Iroquois, Dene, Ojibway/ Saukteaux/Anishinaabe, Inuit, and many others whose histories, languages, and cultures continue to influence our vibrant community

WHAT IS NPBI?

The Non-Profit Board Student Internship Program (NPBI) consists of three mutually supportive activities with an estimated total commitment time of 50-60 hours. These activities are:

- A series of six workshops: Organized by the Career Centre and delivered by volunteers from the Alberta Board Development Program, the workshops provide interns with training and discussion opportunities to explore key aspects of non-profit boards. (15 hours in workshops)
- A board placement: Organized by Community Service-Learning (CSL) and guided by volunteer Mentors from each host board, the board placement affords Interns the opportunity to attend and to participate in board meetings, using and practising their newly acquired skills. (20 hours in board meetings)
- A project to support board governance: To qualify for a NPBI Certificate, Interns contribute a final project – which they design and complete under the guidance of their Mentors. (20 hours on board project)

*The internship also meets the non-credit opportunity requirement for the Certificate in Community Engagement and Service-Learning.

EXPECTATIONS AND ROLES

The relationship between the board mentor and the student intern is critical for success of the program.

INTERNS ARE EXPECTED TO:

- Attend and participate in board meetings; ask questions and apply workshop learnings.
- Practice the skills of observation, time management, personal organization, effective communication, and consideration for others at all board meetings.
- Be pro-active about brainstorming possible projects for the board that will fulfill a need.
- Produce a final project for the board that will enhance board governance. The final project will be presented at graduation.
- Attend and participate in all of the workshops to ensure a basic foundation of knowledge and experience.

PLEASE NOTE: If a participant misses more than 2 workshops regardless of reason or advance notice, they will not be eligible to receive the NPBI certificate. If a workshop is missed, interns must complete a make-up assignment based on the missed content. The make-up assignment has a deadline for completion and will be emailed to missing participants after the session.

MENTORS ARE EXPECTED TO:

- Provide the intern with an orientation and information about the organization (e.g. website, manuals).
- Introduce the intern to fellow board members and the organization's staff and help integrate the Intern onto the board.
- Be available to answer any questions the Intern may have.
- Discuss goals and expectations, and how the two of you will communicate and work together.
- Assist the intern in understanding their role on the board and with any tasks or projects assigned.
- Identify and model expected behaviours of an effective board member.
- Provide constructive feedback to the intern on an on-going basis.
- Be clear with the intern as to what is considered confidential and what is not.

BOARDS ARE EXPECTED TO:

- Provide opportunities for the intern to fulfill the program's time commitment requirement (September to April). Activities the Intern may undertake to meet this commitment can include attending board meetings, serving on a committee, and working on a special project.
- Provide a meaningful, supportive learning experience for the intern.
- Appoint the intern's mentor, and an alternate in the event that the mentor is unable to meet her or his commitment.

COMMUNICATION IS KEY!

- Choose a communication mode that works best for BOTH intern and mentor (eg. Monthly or Semi-monthly check-ins by phone or email; short coffee meetings before or after board meetings and workshops – to prepare & debrief, etc.)
- Discuss your goals and expectations for the internship.
- If any contact information changes or any circumstances affecting ability to carry out your role in the relationship, please inform both your partner (mentor or intern) and the program coordinators immediately.
- Be accessible and be aware that you each have many demands on your time.
- Be honest, open, and direct in all communication.
- Remember that good communication also includes active listening.

Mentors: If available, you may want to offer the intern a virtual tour of your organization or an on-line volunteer orientation. The intern may be able to get a greater sense of the day-to-day work of the organization and how board decisions influence operations.

Interns: You may want to keep a journal of your learnings/experiences throughout the internship. There will be a mid-point reflection in January.

DEVELOPING AN EFFECTIVE MENTORING RELATIONSHIP

CONVERSATION GUIDE FOR BUILDING RELATIONSHIPS

Adapted from The Mentor's Guide, Zachary (2000)

TO-DO LIST	STRATEGIES	CONSIDERATIONS
Reflect on mentoring	Have you ever been in a mentoring relationship? What did you learn? What did you wish happened? Why is this important?	Be vulnerable about your own mentoring experiences by including failures and successes.
Get to know each other	Obtain copy of each other's LinkedIn profile or resume in advance of meeting. Probe with introductory questions. Make notes after meeting of their highly valuable qualities and characteristics.	Be authentic by being loyal to your identity and values. Celebrate commonalities and differences. Share background stories, aspirations and goals.
Confidentiality and limitations	What are the boundaries of this relationship? What information is confidential? What are we able to contribute to this relationship?	Set limitations and boundaries for the mentoring relationship. Consider what will happen if these boundaries are crossed.
Identify goals	What are your long-term big goals? What are your short-term worthwhile goals? Where do you see yourself in the future?	These can be broad starting goals. Clarity may be lacking but can be guided and made realistic by deconstructing into SMART goals.
Roles and responsibilities	What do you expect out of this relationship and why? Review the roles of mentor and mentee. What does this mean in your relationship?	Discuss what your responsibility assumptions are and if they are realistic for your relationship. Document these expectations but allow for adjustments and flexibility.
Relationship expectations	Ask: What do you want to know from me? What do you think we need to make this relationship work? What do you need right now-today? What kinds of special learning or opportunities for improvement do you feel I should provide or help you get?	Discuss your effort, enthusiasm, time you would like to devote to working with each other. Explore priorities for learning (ex. must have, nice to have, long-term, short-term strategies).
Desired outcomes	What does success at the end of this time frame look like to you? How will you be different at the end of the program? What will you be able to do or know?	For the mentor, what areas of expertise do you have relevant to the mentee's goals? Or who in your network can you call on who has relevant expertise?
Authentic tasks and learning criteria	What will you do to achieve your goals? What assistance can be provided? What learning opportunities are available?	Discuss learning styles and how this may affect the relationship. Discuss activities to enhance learning and incorporate network connections. See: Menu of Mentoring Activities
Accountability and feedback	How are you going to hold each other accountable? What performance criteria can you set? How will feedback be given?	Be respectful of time. Discuss availability, communication methods and how feedback can be given comfortably. Set boundaries.

MENU OF MENTORING ACTIVITIES

The following are some activities that mentors and interns can do together to enhance their mentoring relationship. Activities should be selected and adapted based on your learning goals.

Board Member Stages: Mentors can discuss the different roles an Intern might experience throughout their involvement on a board from observer to contributor to committee chair to board chair.

Organizational Challenges: Discuss the challenges your organization experiences and how the board goes about handling these challenges. This could help development ideas for project outcomes.

Career History: Mentors can discuss their career path, and how their involvement in the non-profit sector compliments their career. Sharing tips on transitioning from school to work will be helpful in identifying transferrable skills from one role to another.

Intern Presentation: The intern can prepare a presentation on a relevant topic and present it to their mentor and the board at a later date. The mentor can evaluate the intern on the content and delivery of the presentation and give them constructive feedback on how to improve.

Progress Reports: Interns can share a sample of their project as it takes shape and get evaluated on it by their mentor prior to the project being due. This can help interns recognize their areas for improvement. Mentors could also share some of their own work or work done in their field to discuss its merits, strengths and weaknesses. This is a good chance for mentors to clearly communicate expectations.

Reading Resources: A mentor can suggest an influential book, periodical, or journal article to the Intern. The mentor and intern could then discuss the literature and its application towards the intern's goals.

Volunteer Orientation: The intern may wish to participate in a full volunteer orientation to get to know the organization from a volunteer's point of view. If no volunteer orientation exists, perhaps the intern can interview volunteers or volunteer coordinators to find out what information is essential to the volunteer experience.

Learning Journal: It's suggested that interns keep a learning journal to track progress and concerns. This is an invaluable tool the interns can use to document their thoughts and feelings about their goals, learning objectives, their progress in reaching those goals and their discussions with their mentors during their meetings. Here are a couple of prompts:

- The most important work we did today was...
- To apply what I've learned, I will...
- The questions or challenges that exist for me are...

BEST PRACTICES IN PROJECT DEVELOPMENT

Interns should NOT choose a project for their board; the mentor should NOT choose a project for their intern. Project identification should be a collaborative process.

TIPS FOR SUCCESS

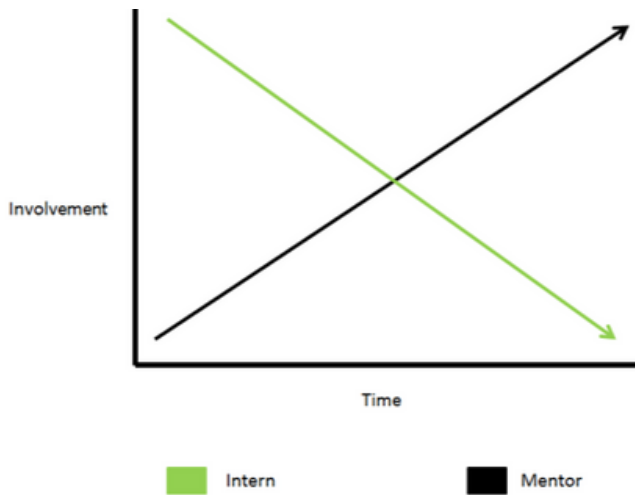

- Projects should be 20 hours of work which may include research, creation, edits and final version. If you identify a project requiring more time, consider breaking it down into smaller parts that can be accomplished over a few years with various interns.
- Projects must be completed by the April graduation
- When choosing a project:
 - Get input from the board and choose one that will enhance the board and board members' roles and will have long-term sustainability for the board;
 - Explore how the project connects back to the board's mission and vision; consider the learning opportunities for interns, (Are they enrolled in any courses that may compliment the project or organization?);
 - Share your ideas with the NPBI program coordinators for feedback before beginning.
- To complete the project:
 - Make sure the project is finite and has a clear beginning and end with agreed upon outcomes;
 - Create an action plan with incremental goals and timelines and schedule check-in meetings between mentor and intern;
 - Mentors should provide on-going guidance, feedback and constructive criticism;
 - Interns should ask for assistance and feedback and communicate challenges as they arise.

USUAL PROJECT PLANNING:

Typically paid staff are heavily involved in the planning process for project development and volunteers are brought in during the execution phase. For example, you might have a research project you want written where all of the information has been gathered and the volunteer has been asked to write it.

CONSULTANT-BASED PROJECT PLANNING:

Alternatively, mentors might look to interns for ideas that can help the organization, much like you would a consultant. However, with this approach the intern doesn't have context or history of the organization. They do not yet understand the day-to-day challenges or the strengths and weaknesses of the organization and therefore aren't yet in place to offer assistance.

RETHINKING PARTICIPATION IN PROJECT PLANNING:

Interns are at various stages of their learning. As they progress through the program they develop the skills needed to be an effective board member. Involve your intern at every point of the internship and talk to them about what they are learning and how they see this helping your organization. By attending board meetings and seeing how the organization functions interns will be in a better position to see how they can assist.

Once a project is selected it is important to check in frequently with one another to offer support and identify the resources you might need or know of. Some interns may not be aware of the resources that can assist them.

ABOUT THE NON-PROFIT SECTOR

WHAT IS THE NON-PROFIT SECTOR?

Non-profit and voluntary organizations are organizations “whose work depends on: serving a public benefit; volunteers for at least its governance; some financial support from individuals; and limited direct influence by governments, even though they may receive support from government sources.”¹

WHY DOES IT EXIST?

Social structure is sometimes described as a three-legged stool held up by government, the private sector, and the non-profit sector. The non-profit sector plays a large role in maintaining, building, and protecting community by providing valuable services and programs. Historically, non-profit organizations have been catalysts for change, introducing multiple perspectives in society, and working for the empowerment of society’s most marginalized people. They play a significant role in democracy, providing a means of expression, and activism for many people who are, for one reason or another, excluded from conventional means of political expression.

Depending on the economic and political system, the state (embodied by the government) provides some social programs and basic services. However, the growing local and global trends towards a market-driven economy and a reduced government role in direct welfare provision are placing higher demands on the non-profit sector to improve social welfare and other quality of services.

CHALLENGES AND ISSUES

Funding:

- Dependency on external agencies for operational and project funding. Funding from the government (which counts for approximately one-third of funding in the non-profit sector) is often short-term and project-specific, and does not contribute to the administrative costs of running the organization. Dependency on external short-term funding prevents non-profits from being able to implement any long-term organizational plans, and contributes to many of the staff changes and shortages that you’ll notice when working with non-profits.

Human Resources

- Increasing competition for workers in the province. The non-profit sector must compete with the public sector and industry for entry-level and front-line positions as well as qualified applicants. The non-profit sector struggles to offer competitive pay (due to lack of organizational funding), and personal development opportunities.¹
- Stressful working conditions. Due to shortages in staff numbers, staff end up working an increasing amount of overtime. Overtime is particularly high for supervisors and senior staff and compensation does not fully reflect this. Staff often take on multiple roles within the organization causing burnout, decreased morale, higher turnover and lower quality of service for clients.
- Difficulty recruiting volunteers. The pool of volunteers in Alberta can shrink as people choose to enter or re-enter the labour force to take advantage of high wages.

TRENDS IN ALBERTA'S NON-PROFIT SECTOR

- Alberta has the highest per capita number of non-profits in the country. There are more than 26,000 non-profit and voluntary organizations in Alberta, over 8000 of which are located in Edmonton and Area.
- Non-profit organizations employ over 450,000 Albertans. More than half (69%) of all non-profit and voluntary organizations in Alberta have no paid personnel. The majority of organizations with paid staff employ one to four people. Fifty-seven per cent of employees are full-time and 43% are part time. Overall, the non-profit workforce is predominantly female – about three quarters of paid staff are women.
- The non-profit and voluntary sector generates at least $10 billion of activity in Alberta's economy. Presently, non-profits in Alberta receive nearly 50 per cent of their funding from outside sources, which includes government, corporations, and private donations.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

Learning objectives are goals you set for personal development, with a focus on the learning that characterizes internships, cooperative education and work experience programs. Learning objectives simply refer to what you hope to gain as a result of participating in your internship.

Why should I write learning objectives?

- Learning objectives help to make your internship more intentional.
- Learning objectives help you to monitor your progress.
- Learning objectives help you stay focused. With a clear goal in mind, you will be able to remind yourself of what you want to achieve and identify an action plan to help achieve your objectives.

DEVELOP SMART LEARNING OBJECTIVES

SMART goals are based on an acronym that describes an observable behaviour or action and allows people to gauge their own success. Use an action verb to begin writing the learning objective.

S – specific (significant, stretching)

M – measurable (meaningful, motivational)

A – action-oriented (attainable, agreed upon, achievable, acceptable)

R – realistic (relevant, reasonable, rewarding, results-oriented)

T – time-bound (timely, tangible)

CONSIDERATIONS FOR YOUR OBJECTIVES

When developing your objectives, consider the following:

- The organization's and board's mission and goals.
- Possible obstacles to achieving your goals.
- How do your objectives relate to your potential board project?

Instructions:

- Consider what goals you want to achieve during your internship. Discuss these goals with your mentor. Examples:
Over the course of the internship, I want to work on my public speaking skills.
Over the course of the internship, I want to learn about how to effectively run meetings. I want to be able to effectively facilitate meetings.
- For each goal, consider the SMART model. Identify the specific, measurable, achievable, relevant and timely components of the goal. These elements help you break down the goal to make it more manageable.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES AGREEMENT

Together we have discussed and agree on the following goals we will work toward together to create a meaningful mentoring relationship for both of us. Our SMART goals are outlined below (try to define three):

LEARNING OBJECTIVE
S PECIFIC	M EASURABLE	A CHIEVABLE	R ELEVANT	T IMELY
What are the specific components of this learning objective?	How will I measure that the objective is being achieved? How will I recognize the objective has been achieved?	What actions will I take to achieve the objective? List specific tasks and activities that will help you achieve the objective.	How does the objective relate to your internship? How will the objective help you to progress in your career goals?	When is my targeted deadline to achieve the objective?
BARRIERS & CHALLENGES (List what barriers may prevent you from achieving the objective)
INVESTMENT (Time, resources, etc.)
