

HEALTH ETHICS SYMPOSIUM

BODILY AUTONOMY: an Ethical Dialogue on Gender Rights, Reproductive Freedoms, and Personal Choice

Save the Date - Friday, 25 November 2022

Time: 10:00 AM - 3:00 PM MST

Hybrid event: In-person at Lister Conference Centre, UofA
Online via Zoom

Registration through Eventbrite

Bodily autonomy is an important topic for contemporary health ethics. At its core, it is a fundamental right expressing “my body is for me”. Bodily autonomy relates to basic life choices: how an individual chooses to dress and express themselves, how an individual chooses who and how they love, and what decisions are afforded to them for their health and well-being. While bodily autonomy relates to feminism, it is a concept that applies to everyone, regardless of their gender, sexuality, or body.

Speakers and Facilitators:

Tracey Bailey
Vangie Bergum
Fatmeh Kalouti
Doris Kieser
Gillian Lermeyer
Marni Panas
Michael van Manen

REGISTRATION COSTS: In-person Regular - $35.00 (incl. lunch)
In-person Student - $15.00 (incl. lunch)
Online - FREE

For updates on symposium details, please check:

John Dossetor Health Ethics Centre website:
www.ualberta.ca/john-dossetor-health-ethics-centre/index.html
Email: dossetor.centre@ualberta.ca
Phone: (780) 492-6676

Everyone Welcome!

UNIVERSITY
OF ALBERTA

