With Putin's assault on Ukraine still unraveling, we have already seen the announcements of interview-based research projects aiming to capture the human experience of the war. Join us for a discussion on the ethics and implications of such 'rapid response' fieldwork during sensitive times.

This is the second annual event within the framework of the Anthropology of Ukraine network that was hosted last June, in association with UAlberta's Huculak Chair of Ukrainian Culture and Ethnography.

Dr. Oksana Kis is a feminist historian and anthropologist, a head of the Department of Social Anthropology and a Leading Research Fellow at the Institute of Ethnology, National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine (in Lviv). Her current research focuses on everyday lives of the Ukrainian refugees in the displaced persons camps in post-WWII Europe.

Dr. Maryna Hrymych is a folklorist, anthropologist, writer, and diplomat. She served as a Professor and Chair at the Kyiv Taras Shevchenko University, and is a Curator of Academic Projects at the National Centre of Folk Culture Ivan Honchar Museum as of 2018. Since 2016 she has also worked as an independent researcher in the Middle East.

Dr. Oksana Kuzmenko is a philologist and folklorist, and a Leading Research Fellow at The Ethnology Institute National Academy of Sciences of Ukraine. Her research interests include: historical folklore, dynamics of folklore tradition, methods of conceptual analysis of verbal folklore texts, and integral interdisciplinary folklore studies.
