

Voluntary Delay of Program

Students may voluntarily delay their programs by deferring a placement. Students who do defer will be placed in a course that overlaps with the subsequent cohort and will be matched after the students in that cohort have been allocated their placements.